Learning about Opioid Use Disorder in the Emergency Department

Turn up the Volume on Opioid Use Disorder Care in Your Emergency Department

21% of people diagnosed with OUD have first contact with the medical system through EDs in BC

32% of people with OUD are readmitted to the ED within 30 days

While overdose deaths are decreasing, overdose events are increasing

Survivors of overdose are at high risk for acquired brain injuries and other long-term complications

Overdose deaths remain unacceptably high

You are being recruited to improve OUD care in the ED to:

- ↑ patients being offered evidence-based care
- ↑ long-term outcomes for patients
- ↑ access to care in the community
- ↓ readmission rates
- ↓ ED workload
- ↓ negative interactions with the health care system

Pre-launch informational webinars: January 23 and February 4, 2020

Your team coordinator will be in charge of sending your details on to the Regional Response Teams who are part of the LOUD in the ED Steering Committee

What is a learning collaborative?

Quality improvement initiative spanning 22 EDs

Teams from different EDs all work on the same problem at the same time, focusing on their specific needs

Webinars are used to provide learning content from speakers and experts

Team meetings will help you decide what changes you want to try out as you work towards improving OUD care in your ED

In-person learning day in Vancouver will allow you to learn from others experiences and champion effective changes across regions

What is the time commitment?

- Pre-work with your specific ED team: February - March 2020
- Virtual launch day webinars
- One-hour webinar every two to four weeks: March - September 2020
- Team meetings monthly with your department
- In-person learning day in Vancouver: April 22, 2020
- Virtual closing celebration: September 2020

Who should be on your team?

- Any combination you would like! Suggested minimum: one physician, one nurse and one other team member of any discipline
- Four to seven members to accommodate schedules if possible
- Three team members will be funded to join the all-day collaborative session in Vancouver
- Teams should have the authority to make decisions for the department or have the support of decision makers
